PREFACE

THE present work is the second main volume of the AMERICAN CATALOG series of the twentieth century.

The period of the first main volume covered the five years from January 1, 1900, to January 1, 1905, including only those books of 1905 imprint which were actually published within 1904. It was originally purposed, as stated in the preface to that volume, to make the second period inclusive of the five years from January 1, 1905, to January 1, 1910, or possibly to the end of 1910, the latter modification with the intent of making five-year periods beginning with the calendar year 1911, and to print this year an intermediary three-year cumulation, not in permanent binding but to be superseded later. It proved, however, that the cumulative catalog for the three years—1905, 1906, 1907—would be practically of the same bulk as for the five years preceding and, therefore, it has been decided to make this three-year volume the permanent form of the AMERICAN CATALOG, covering these three calendar years, to be succeeded by a third volume covering the three calendar years 1908, 1909, 1910. This offers a volume of more convenient size and the plan has other advantages. The present catalog embraces reprints, importations in editions and the law reports of United States and State courts, but it does not attempt to include local directories, periodicals, musical scores, books chiefly blank, unbound maps, tracts and other low-priced pamphlets. Nor does it now cover Government and State publications and publications of societies and institutions (except those publishing through the book trade), for the most part now covered by special bibliographies, with some exceptions of works of general rather than of official bearing.

The material of this volume is directly that of The Publishers' Weekly monthly and cumulated Reference Lists as preserved by the linotype system, edited into a consistent alphabet and filled out with additional titles not duly recorded in the year of publication. Its typographical scheme embraces: author entries, designated by Clarendon full-face type, which type is used also for the first word of anonymous books; title entries in Roman lower case; subject entries, designated by SMALL CAPS; and series entries, designated by italics. Thus the advantages of the dictionary catalog, or one-place method, are combined with the advantages of separate alphabets of each class of entry. While the subject entries are thus included in the general alphabet, in place of the second alphabet of the old system, the arrangement of subject entries is as in the previous system, by specific subjects, not by general classes. Each book is placed under the particular subject of which it treats, and entries under general headings are confined to books of a general rather than of a specific character. As the endeavor has been not to repeat entries, cognate subjects should be looked up in searching for books on a given subject, in which the Index to Subject Headings issued by the American Library Association will be found a useful help. As far as practicable the indications given by words in the title of a book have been followed in the assignment to subject headings.

The Directory of Publishers, whose books have been recorded in the present volume, includes 3789 names as against 3876 names in the previous five-year volume. It remains true that nine-tenths of American publishing is done by less than one-tenth of this number. The imprint is the name of publisher given on the title-page of the book, changes of firm name or of publisher being indicated, as far as we could obtain the information, in the list of publishers. Of course, many entries of publishers indicate merely printers or designate authors printing their own books only.

As in the first period, this main volume for the second period is supplemented by a volume containing the original "Weekly Record" of The Publishers' Weekly system with the full title and descriptive note of each work, as preserved in linotype slugs, and printed in three alphabets, one for each of the years 1905, 1906, 1907, which secondary volume is bound in uniform shape with the main volume. This usefully complements the reference list, which is to some extent an index to the full title record of the secondary volume. Each volume is complete, however, without the other, and the main volume includes entries of a number of books which were not recorded in their year of publication and therefore would not be found in the supplementary volume.

Recognition should again be made of the remarkable work in bibliography now carried on by the Library of Congress, particularly through the printed records of the Copyright Office. As has already been suggested, it is not improbable that in view of the increasing product of the American press and the consequent strain upon the resources of private publication, private enterprises may ultimately be superseded by an official bibliography published by the national library, in which case the present volumes would be, in a sense, the initial portion of the continuous record of American bibliography. R. R. BOWKER.
